Mild,
Rain

VOL. 129, No. 321

By Arthur Mayse

After the great wind, the still, small voice, and after the exhilarating but not very significant Gagliardi-Opposition duel on Tuesday, Mrs. Camille Mather to restore the décorum of the House.

This first NDP member for Delta did with a twitch here and a tweak there . . . a plea for traffic controls at two "choo" crossings in her riding, a bid for government medicare "with no profit making insurance companies involved," and a spirited urging of legalized lotteries.

Mrs. Mather also wants more room.

"We lack office space," declared the MLA whose MP husband, Barry Mather, was currently attending the final day of a federal House buffeted by sterner storms than our pre-budget teapot tempests.

"Our caucus room is crowded. There is only one room where you can go to dictate or to think out what you want to say. I hope we can prevail upon the minister of public works to give us more adequate accommodation."

Sub Coming?

Medicare is in the air, minority parties curious about the package and government coy. Victoria Socred Donald Smith added his touch of stagy suspense when he suggested that a gift-wrapped Medicare umbrella might just possibly be substituted for the touted $10 home-owner grant.

Here, I won't speculate, beyond pointing out that such action on Mr. Bennett's part would be out of character. Instead, listen a moment to a solid backbencher from Yale, Socred I. F. Corbett, as he talks about the Sons of Freedom.

"Their leaders," said Mr. Corbett, "all have jail terms, which is probably why they are leaders. They count it a high honor to go to jail for the Doukhobor cause."

"Ask children 10 years old what they want to do when they grow up, and they answer, 'Go to jail!'"

That's the type of thinking you have to deal with. Millions of dollars have been spent on these people in the past, and I don't see why this government should spend more money on a bunch who don't know how to come out of the rain."

The Yale member did admit, however, that many Freedonites are "fed up with the life and don't wish it for their children."

"They want to get out," he said, "if they can."

Full Throttle

And now to the Hon. Philip Arthur Gagliardi, barreling through NDP roadblocks, enjoying every minute of an hour-long shouting match.

The highways minister received his most spectacular fireworks for a reply to opposition members who baited him on government's expropriation of B.C. Electric Railway.

"You talk about swivel-sitting and kangaroo-jumping from the Liberal rump down on my right," he challenged. "Now what kind of kangaroo-hopping is this?"

The portable rostrum placed on each speech-making member's desk skidded as he leaned on it, scowling across at A. B. Macdonald, Vancouver East, who had risen on a point of privilege to remind Mr. Gagliardi that NDPs had moved to delete from the expropriation bill a section that forbade BCER recourse to the courts.

"I say again," Mr. Gagliardi declared at full volume, "we come to a legislature to voice our opinions, and when everyone on the floor of this House voted for that bill, they gave consent to everything in the bill."

Confused uproar from across the floor silenced by Speaker L. H. Shantz with a crashing stroke of his gavel.

I Have Spoken

"When I call for order in this House," Mr. Shantz warned sternly, "I expect order. No one is to shout over my voice!"

Not long thereafter, Mr.

Highway, Rail Traffic Disrupted

By The Canadian Press

A 2.8-inch rainfall and melting snow combined to wash out three large sections of the Trans-Canada Highway in the Fraser Canyon Tuesday, cutting both transcontinental railways and causing an estimated $1,000,000 damage.

Highways Minister Gagliardi of British Columbia said the highway will not be open until CALGARY (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway said today it is resuming its west-bound service to British Columbia.

Friday at the earliest and CPR officials said their main line may be out even longer.

B.C. highways department officials in Kamloops said the washouts, most of which were in the Lytton area 40 miles west of Kamloops, might be even more costly than similar ones a year ago.

Five cars were abandoned between the washouts and a sixth was swept into the Thompson River, a tributary of the Fraser, moments after the occupants jumped out.

Those would be the vacany left by the resignation Sunday of Defence Minister Douglas Harkness, and the vacancy created by the resignation of Public Works Minister Davie Fulton, who has become B.C. leader of the Conservative party.

Mr. Diefenbaker would not

they had had some differences with the Prime Minister.

However, that had been cleared up, they said, and all members of the cabinet were going into the campaign united.

Both men, however, refused to say whether their differences related to the leadership question.

In any event the backbenchers clearly had come to the prime minister's support. One report had it that they had told the dissenting cabinet ministers to "lay off," warning that it would be disaster for the party to get into any internal fights at the beginning of an election campaign.

MUD A PROBLEM

Mud has proven a problem second only to the washouts.

At one point the Trans-Canada Highway is blocked by rock and oozing mud 200 feet wide and 15 feet deep.

LONDON (CP)—Fresh blizzards swept across much of Europe today, disrupting communications and isolating whole communities from Britain to the Balkans.

WIRE BRIEFS

Bases Closed

OTTAWA (CP)—Two of the four United States air force air tanker refuelling bases in Canada will be closed, it was learned today. The two to be closed are at Fort Churchill, Man., and Frobisher on Baffin Island.

That was when the last vote was counted in the formal and standing vote.

The clerk tallying the vote turned to Speaker Marcel Lambert and called out the results—142 in favor of non-confidence in the government, 113 against.

It was a repeat of an earlier vote.

Both times two members of the New Democratic Party voted with the government.

When the prime minister arose after the final vote to announce he would be advising the governor-general and then adjourned the House, MPs of all parties put on a demonstration, singing, throwing papers in the air and exchanging jibes about who would win the election.

The doom of the Diefenbaker ministry had been sealed earlier in the day when all Pleased Smile was flashed by Liberal Leader Pearson as he left Commons after dramatic events Tuesday night which today propelled country into another election campaign.

How Big a Part Did JFK Play?

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Washington Post says the Jan. 30 state department public criticism of Canadian nuclear policy was not concocted on the spur of the moment nor was it a surprise to the White House.

Saying diplomacy requires that the state department take the "rap" for the public criticism, The Post suggests that President Kennedy and his administration were well aware of all the Canada-U.S. nuclear developments.

This follows a report by Washington Star columnist Doris Fleeson suggesting that the public criticism, which Prime Minister Diefenbaker described as an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs, was designed to help Liberal Leader Lester Pearson in his fight against Diefenbaker.

Without mentioning any names, the columnist said a "rather important game" is linked to the speculation that some well-meaning friends here decided to give Mr. Pearson a hand.

The Post said the Kennedy administration decided to make the statement public because Diefenbaker, in his Jan. 25 speech in the House of Commons, continued on Page 3

NEVER BURN A HOUSE UNLESS THEY'RE ASKED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thirteen women members of the Sons of Freedom sect said Tuesday they set fire to the home of orthodox Doukhobor leader John Verigin only after getting a written invitation from him to burn it down.

The women were appealing an arson conviction in the British Columbia Appeal Court. The appeal was turned down.

One of the women, Mrs. Helen Ogleff, told the three appeal judges, "We did not go to burn a home that we were not invited to burn. I only burn where I have a written invitation."

The women are serving a two-year sentence for arson.

New U.S. Curb On Cuban Trade

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today barred shipment of U.S. government-financed cargoes on any ship which has been to Cuba since Jan. 1.

The long-awaited order is aimed at discouraging western shipowners engaging in trade with Cuba.

The new regulation falls considerably short of more sweeping proposals first planned by the administration last fall.

White House sources said the tougher proposals have not been adopted because of U.S. diplomatic success in getting the maritime countries to cut down on the Cuban trade.

These sources said too that stiffer regulations may be issued later if needed—and mean while the number of non-Communist bloc ships calling at Cuban ports has dropped to 14 in January from 92 last July.

Chronology of Events in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Chronology of events in Canada's nuclear warheads controversy:

JAN. 3, 1963

Gen. Lauris Norstad, retired NATO commander, told an Ottawa press conference Canada cannot fulfil its NATO commitments unless it accepts nuclear warheads for its forces in Europe.

JAN. 28

Mr. Harkness issued a press statement which interpreted Mr. Diefenbaker's Jan. 25 speech and said Mr. Harkness believed an agreement for U.S. warheads can be completed in the near future.

JAN. 30

The U.S. state department issued a press statement taking issue with points raised by Mr. Diefenbaker in his Jan. 25 speech.

JAN. 31

Opposition parties forced a special Commons debate on the U.S. statement, all four party leaders denouncing the U.S. move as interference in Canadian affairs.

FEB. 1

Mr. Harkness announced his resignation as defence minister at a morning press conference, then told the Commons he resigned because he and the prime minister could not agree on the nuclear issue. Mr. Harkness said he wanted nuclear warheads for Canadian forces.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons he had accepted the resignation although he found it difficult to understand.

Mr. Harkness told a late afternoon press conference he did not believe the government was defeated in the Commons when the three opposition parties supported the two non-confidence motions by identical votes of 142 to 111.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

A recent Gallup poll shows that 70 per cent of all Canadians use alcohol in one form or another.

It is also endorsed by Dr. Hans Selye of Montreal as an antidote for stress—along with chewing gum, travel, sports and dancing.

In case you've been wondering, the popularity of various potions ranks in this order: whisky, 38 per cent; gin, 16 per cent; rum, 13.7 per cent; brandy, 4.3 per cent; liqueurs, 2.3 per cent; alcohol, 2.2 per cent; "miscellaneous," 3 per cent, and vodka, 3 per cent. That's quite a jump for vodka—and you can't smell it, either!

Say what you like . . . spring has sprung . . .

Mother Nature tells us so.

Just listen to her words: An English skylark was seen soaring and heard singing over the grounds of Gordon Head Junior High School this morning by Mrs. Barbara Brown, 3920 Cedar Hill Road; a camellia bush has broken out in blossom at the home of Mrs. J. Bennett, 916 Dale Street, and the swamp frogs have started singing en masse in the Mt. Douglas district.

Mike Bley, five-year-old son of Mrs. C. W. Bley, 3138 Cock, doesn't hesitate to offer a prayer to suit himself.

The Sisters of Our Lady of the Angels taught him the Hail Mary prayer. But when he repeated it at home for his mother he made a few changes.

Instead of saying "Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners now, and at the hour of our death," he said, "Pray for us singers, now at our desk."

He defended his version by saying that at Holy Angels Kindergarten he sits at his desk and sings.

A large portion of St. Joseph's Hospital's successful building fund drive came from persons closest to the scene, so to speak. Together the medical staff, ladies' auxiliary, nurses and hospital staff contributed $118,450.

The medical staff gave $59,553 to the building fund. The ladies' auxiliary raised $35,000 for it and $23,901 came from the nurses and hospital staff.

A blonde with every bomb. That's the type of "brainwashing" being used to get the public to accept civil defence, according to a New Democratic Party member in the legislature.

Camille Mather (NDP—Delta) complained about it in the House Tuesday.

She held up a newspaper picture of a pretty girl in a bomb shelter.

"In a nuclear war there is no defence—all is offence," said Mrs. Mather.

Local residents were delighted last week to hear that oracle of all Victorians, the BBC, treat the city across the pond with the disdain they feel it deserves.

The 9 o'clock newscaster was describing the progress of HM the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh over Canada, en route to Fiji.

He said bad weather had forced the royal flight to descend on Vancouver, "where," he announced, "the Queen and Prince Philip spent the night in the local hotel."

Jimmy Fraser, well-known Indian weather prophet, who is recovering from an illness in St. Joseph's Hospital, would like his friends to visit him.

The 83-year-old Songhees has been in hospital for about two weeks now with a heart condition.

Jimmy predicted in December that Victoria would have a mild winter. He based his prediction mainly on the destruction of a spirit stone named "Salaquit," near William Head.

He claimed the spirit stone did much to regulate the weather, especially in checking the southwest wind. The stone, a huge boulder, was blasted away by road crews.

A rumor that the main studios of CHEK-TV will be moved to the mainland with change in ownership of the station was flatly denied today by Dick McDaniel, manager.

He said that more personnel would be added to the Saanich operation and equipment improved.

"All we hope to do under the new ownership is improve the quality of broadcasting," he said.

CHEK has been sold by Dave Armstrong and associates to a group headed by Bill Hughes, of CKNW, subject to approval of the BBG and department of transport.

ELECTION REACTIONTragedy to Some,
Relief to Others

Downfall of the federal government is regarded with mixed feelings by provincial politicians: some call it a tragedy; others a relief.

"This is a very serious time in the history of our country," Premier Bennett said Friday.

Because of this, he didn't want to make any political statement at present, he said.

But Attorney-General Robert Bonner said "The whole experience has been really tragic."

I don't care what political party anyone belongs to, he can take no satisfaction in the fact the national government has come to this end."

Mr. Bonner said "the thing

Bi-Culture
Issue Tops
In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—The smouldering question of bi-culturalism could be the overriding issue in Quebec in a federal election campaign, sources here feel.

Both the Social Credit party—which unexpectedly won 26 seats in Quebec last June—and the federal Liberal party have come out for a federal royal commission into Canada's status as bi-cultural country.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, on the other hand, has turned down a royal commission in favour of a round-table discussion by representatives of the provinces and the federal government.

The issue of bi-culturalism has been assuming larger and larger proportions in the minds of most Quebecers during the last two years.

One highly-placed Progressive Conservative party official said he thought the issue would "certainly" be important in Quebec.

House Defeat
Second Time
In 96 Years

By BEN WARD

Ottawa (CP)—Only twice in the nearly 96 years since Confederation has a government been defeated on non-confidence motions in the House of Commons.

Both were minority governments and both were Conservative. But the similarity ends there.

On Tuesday night the administration of John Diefenbaker was toppled in two votes on Liberal and Social Credit motions, each by a count of 142 to 111, in the shaky 25th Parliament which had sat for just over four months.

On July 1, 1926, Arthur Meighen's government fell on its third day in office. The vote was 96 to 85 and the slim margin was provided by an MP of the now-vanished Progressive party who rose in the House a few moments later to confess that he had forgotten about being paired with an absent Conservative.

The MP tried to have his vote withdrawn but the Speaker ruled that a vote, once cast and recorded, cannot be changed or withdrawn.

The episode began with the general election of Oct. 19, 1925, when the Conservatives won 116 seats, the Liberals 101, Progressives 24 and others four.

KING RETAINED OFFICE

Liberal Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who had been in office since 1921, continued to administer with the Progressives supporting his minority Liberal group.

In June, 1926, a customs scandal which had been brewing for months, erupted into a severe attack on the King government in the Commons.

A special Commons committee had investigated and found evidence of shortages and evasions in customs duty collections. The Liberal customs minister was blamed.

On June 25, a Friday, the government was beaten on three votes in quick succession. Two were on procedural points and the other on a ruling by the Speaker.

On Monday morning Mr. King went to the governor-general, Lord Byng of Vimy, and asked him to dissolve Parliament for a new election.

That afternoon Mr. King announced to the Commons that his request had been refused and resigned as prime minister.

MEIGHEN TAKES OVER

Lord Byng immediately sent for Mr. Meighen and asked him to form a new government. Mr. Meighen accepted and was sworn in on Tuesday morning.

Thursday, the July 1 Dominion Day holiday, Mr. King dropped a bombshell in the House. It came in a money supply debate, the traditional debate in which the confidence of the government can be tested to prove that it has the right to spend public funds.

The non-confidence motion, which actually was moved by one of Mr. King's associates, was that Mr. Meighen had appointed six Conservative MPs to acting cabinet posts at a salary and these MPs still were sitting in the House.

HAD TO RESIGN

In that era an MP named to the cabinet had to resign and seek re-election before taking a cabinet post. Usually this was done between an election and the first sitting of a new Parliament.

Conservatives argued that only acting posts were involved, at no salary. Liberals countered that salary provisions were automatic, unless the order-in-council of an appointment said otherwise. And the six in question did not.

A long hassle ended in the vote which defeated the government.

Mr. Meighen obtained a writ of dissolution from the governor-general on July 2. The election was set for Sept. 14.

In the election campaign Mr. King brought to the fore the constitutional issue of Lord Byng's refusal to grant him dissolution. It overshadowed the anti-Liberal customs scandal.

The Liberals won 118 seats, the Conservatives 91.

MUST GO

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said it was obvious the federal government "had to be disposed of."

"The people of Canada should put Dief the Chief on relief," said Mr. Strachan.

In my opinion the people of Canada have realized the Liberals failed in opposition and the Tories failed in government and the record shows the NDP and its national leader Tommy Douglas presented the people with the clear-cut economic policies and clear-cut international policies that are required to bring some sanity back to the affairs of Canada."

Mr. Strachan said he would not miss any debates in the legislature to join the new federal campaign.

"My first duty is to the legislature." He would only speak at weekend rallies.

BAD FOR NATION

Liberals leader Ray Perrault said he believed Canadians of all parties would welcome the election.

The chaotic political condition in Ottawa has been bad for B.C. and all of Canada. It has affected our economy and it has damaged our world position.

One highly-placed Progressive Conservative party official said he thought the issue would "certainly" be important in Quebec.

The People's Verdict

BY DEFEATING THE Diefenbaker Government the House of Commons undoubtedly expressed the people's will. The parliamentary vote last night accurately reflects the vote of last June's election.

The people decided then that they had no confidence in the Government but, through their elected representatives, were willing to give Mr. Diefenbaker a chance to govern on probation, there being no alternative.

In the seven months since the election the Government failed that test. It delayed all public business, postponed all its promised "long term" economic remedies, did not even introduce a budget, quarreled with Britain and the United States and refused to make up its mind on the issue of nuclear weapons.

While the nuclear issue and the resignation of Mr. Harkness produced the immediate parliamentary crisis, they were only the occasion, not the cause, of the Government's fall. It fell because it tried to take the easy way of equivocation until Parliament could tolerate it no longer.

But obviously there is more than that to the Government's unprecedented collapse (unprecedented because the fall of the Meighen Government 37 years ago by a single vote in Parliament was only an accident).

It is beyond doubt now that the Diefenbaker Government has long been under internal as well as external strain.

The cabinet was divided in the first place by the nuclear struggle between Mr. Green and Mr. Harkness, which Mr. Diefenbaker vainly tried to paper over by refusing to make any decision one way or the other.

During the last few days a group of the most powerful ministers has been meeting frequently in the absence of the prime minister and is said to have demanded his resignation.

This morning the most influential Conservative newspaper in the nation, The Toronto Globe and Mail, asks Mr. Diefenbaker to resign his party's leadership. "If Mr. Diefenbaker continues in the leadership," says The Globe and Mail, "he will do the party irreparable harm and perhaps destroy it as a national force."

Coming from such a source these are shaking words but many Conservatives will agree with them. As The Globe and Mail argues "The man who could not lead the Government into action to cure Canada's economic difficulties is unfit to lead the Conservative party into action at this election."

After the brave promises of 1957, the ensuing years of confusion, financial disorder, foreign brouls, and the absence of any national policy have discredited Mr. Diefenbaker.

In his desperation he now clutches at the straw of anti-Americanism. Having no policy of his own, he denounces the policies of Canada's friendly neighbor to divert the people's mind from their own problems and the failure to solve them.

The most significant passage in his final speech to a dying Parliament rejected Mr. Dean Rusk's apology for the tone of the famous American comment on the nuclear issue and renewed the attacks on the United States Government.

Mr. Diefenbaker evidently thinks this is good politics but in international affairs at a time of acute danger it is completely irresponsible.

As some of Mr. Diefenbaker's colleagues evidently see, with grave alarm, he is using the last months of office to divide the free world alliance when Britain is trying with all its strength and wisdom to repair it. We shall see on election day whether Canada is foolish enough to cut off its nose to spite its face.

In the meantime, the end of the present Parliament will come as a relief to most Canadians because it ends an artificial and intolerable situation of paralysis at Ottawa.

No important business can be done, of course, until a new parliament is elected, though Mr. Diefenbaker, foreseeing defeat, has hastily appointed seven of his friends to high office as he had no moral right to do. But business can be resumed and a new start can begin if the voters elect a majority government. That is the nation's paramount necessity.

You've Got a Bad Reputation'

MR. BENNETT AND MR. BONNER may seek to lay the blame on political opponents, but Mr. Leonard Hynes, president of Canadian Industries Ltd., tells them that in eastern Canada British Columbia has a reputation for "bad government"—and that is where much of the country's investment capital is located.

Part of that reputation, he says, is created by the fiction of British Columbia's debt-free debt. Part no doubt results from the manner in which the government expropriated the B.C. Electric and did its utmost to prevent appeal by stockholders who considered themselves injured.

"With all its great resources, how can B.C. go out and compete on export markets when its business climate is made undesirable by uncertainty about its government?" asks Mr. Hynes.

"What we hear about B.C. 3,000 miles away isn't necessarily the truth. But what we do hear is that there's a lot of labor trouble, high wage rates and a bad government. If they're saying this in eastern Canada, you'd better pay attention to it and do something to change it. You've got a bad reputation."

This is not the kind of talk the provincial government relishes. It is the kind, however, which invites some constructive action and a demonstration of frankness by the government essential if British Columbia is to regain its good name as a favorable location for investment.

Instead, the Skybolt row raged through November and December, doing the United States untold damage with no superlative powers of prophecy were needed to foresee that the U.S. government would eventually have to make the offer to share remaining Skybolt development costs with Britain—the offer with which the President in fact opened his Nassau meeting with Prime Minister Macmillan. If that offer had been made at the end of October, there would have been no Skybolt now, for the British would then have had no possible grounds for complaint against the U.S.

Thus Rusk's task would never have been easy; even for a man with the executive talents of a Dean G. Acheson, a Robert A. Lovett, or a Robert McNamee.

Before choosing Rusk, the President made the task harder still, in ways that are too obvious to need naming. A secretary unable or unwilling to assert executive leadership was then installed in a department debased, dispirited, and divided. This combination has produced what we now see—a non-Department of State.

It is not a unified department, guided by a common viewpoint imposed by its leader, and working toward a common aim, clearly defined from above. It is a congeries of competing viewpoints, contrasting personalities, and conflicting ambitions.

Among the New Frontiersmen, there are two popular excuses for this irrational gap in the middle of an administration otherwise notable for its competence and coherence.

It is said that nothing can be done because "the President is his own Secretary of State." Or it is said that "the real Secretary of State" is the President's brilliant and knowledgeable personal chief of staff for foreign affairs, McGeorge Bundy.

But that is nonsense. As the foreign policy record shows, the President and Bundy too, for that matter, need a department to work with. As the case of the Defence Department shows, that relationship is far from impossible.

And as long as the State Department is really a non-department, other damaging affairs will follow the Canadian affair, the Skybolt affair, and all the earlier ones, quite possibly with even worse results calamitous to the President himself.

No True Parallel

By PHILIP TOYNBEE, from London

AUTHORITARIAN governments in Europe; heavy unemployment at home; satirical humor purveyed in small cabaret clubs; a growing sense of division and incomprehension between generations... This is a true enough picture of the early middle-sixties, so far as it goes, and if may, perhaps, suggest that the present age is beginning to be reminiscent of the 1930s.

Indeed I believe that the comparison has been made, and that the parallel has been closely drawn. Yet it seems to me that it is an utterly misleading comparison which will collapse at the very first prod beneath the appearance, even beneath the labels, of things.

On the day when General de Gaulle returned to power I was talking to a group of left-wing students in London. The fiercer and more extreme members of the audience insisted that a true historical parallel could be drawn with the landing of France on Spanish soil in June 1936.

This seemed to me to be an insane comparison, but I noted—not for the first time—the almost overwhelming impulse to simplify the complexities of a situation by forcing it into a contrived category of historical situations. (Since his return, de Gaulle has been elevated or demoted from the Franco-category into the categories either of Napoleon III or of Louis XIV.) But it seems to me that the more closely we examine any moment of history the less it comes to resemble any other moment.

Authoritarian governments in Europe? But the wost that can be said of the Adenauer regime is that it is a democracy in which too much deference has been paid to a stubborn old man who refuses to abdicate from the power which democracy allows him. As for de Gaulle, he is neither Franco nor Napoleor nor Louis XIV, but an arrogant, egotistical man whose principal achievement up till now has not been an act of conquest or aggression but the relinquishment of Algeria to the Algerians.

Heavy unemployment at home? But even now the figure is less than one-third of the worst figure of the thirties, and the concern of the public is at least as great as it was then.

Satirical cabarets? Well, it's true that these were a feature of pre-Nazi Berlin; but they were a feature of Paris all through the forties and fifties. In any case, this seems a tenuous phenomenon on which to draw a parallel.

The Age-War? This is always with us, in a sense, though I believe that it was fought more fiercely between 1914 and 1939 than at most other periods. The real division was not between those who were growing up in the thirties and post-war generations and those who were fixed forever in the reign of Queen Victoria. In the sixties the very young receive much more attention than their age-group has ever received in the past—I think myself that attention should be paid to them—but I cannot feel that they are divided from their parents by an insurmountable gulf.

The differences between the two periods seem to me to be far more compelling than their accidental resemblances. Then, Europe was still the centre of the world, and European conflicts were the worst danger to the peace of the world. Then, both America and Russia were isolationist. Then, the art and literature of Europe were still at the peak of that brilliant and diverse new movement which had begun at about the turn of the century.

Then, Europe was threatened by the Nazis but the world was not threatened with annihilation. Then, the British upper classes still thought they had a right to rule the world. (Today they still think so, but the world now pities them as lunatics rather than hating them as tyrants.) Then—I think—the world was a more evil place than it is today, but perhaps a more interesting one.

"...I didn't know the House was loaded!..."

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Message Made a Bad Business Worse

ACCORDING to authoritative report, a few bloopers have angered President Kennedy quite so much as the State Department's impulsive intervention in the Canadian Parliament's debate on national defence. It is not clear who was responsible for yielding to the human, all-too-human temptation to show up Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who clearly deserved it.

Alsop

What is clear—what should have been clear from the first—is that yielding to this temptation only made a bad business worse.

As the President is angry, it is to be presumed that someone will pay for the bloopers. But if the President is wise, he will ask himself whether the fault does not lie deeper than the individual bad judgment of this or that official or policy-maker.

The Canadian affair, after all, comes hard on the heels of the Skybolt affair, which was very much more damaging. And the Skybolt affair could have been easily avoided by a little foresight as the Canadian affair could have been avoided by staying silent.

Easily Foreseen

NO SUPERNAL POWERS OF PROPHECY were needed to foresee that the U.S. government would eventually have to make the offer to share remaining Skybolt development costs with Britain—the offer with which the President in fact opened his Nassau meeting with Prime Minister Macmillan. If that offer had been made at the end of October, there would have been no Skybolt now, for the British would then have had no possible grounds for complaint against the U.S.

INSTEAD, the Skybolt row raged through November and December, doing the United States untold damage with all its allies. And when the cost-sharing offer was at last made at Nassau, it was refused by Prime Minister Macmillan; for the British had decided in the interval that they too did not want Skybolt.

THE result, in itself somewhat questionable, was the substitute offer of Polaris missiles for the British Navy. This was wrapped up in the scheme for multilateral deterrent, which Gen. de Gaulle was blandly invited to join.

ONCE AGAIN, it was predictable that de Gaulle would feel he was being treated lightly. He was duly enraged. And it is at least an even bet that this Nassau-born fury was what drove de Gaulle to cross the important line between obstructing the British entry into the Common Market, which he was already doing, and positively vetoing the British entry, which he thereupon did.

IN SECRETARY OF STATE DEAN RUSK, the President has a wise policy-maker, but a man with no knack and no taste for executive leadership. Yet executive leadership was desperately needed; for the organization Rusk inherited, which had been the most powerful and creative agency of government under Harry S. Truman, was already in sorry condition when Rusk took office.

IN THE ERA OF JOHN FOSTER DULLES, the effective State Department was contained by the four walls of Dulles' private office; and in this period, for various reasons, the rest of the department was simultaneously debased and inflated to the point of droposity. In his short, widely underestimated term in office, Christian A. Herter fought a successful holding action, but that was the best he could manage.

THUS RUSK'S TASK would never have been easy; even for a man with the executive talents of a Dean G. Acheson, a Robert A. Lovett, or a Robert McNamara.

BEFORE CHOOSING RUSK, the President made the task harder still, in ways that are too obvious to need naming. A secretary unable or unwilling to assert executive leadership was then installed in a department debased, dispirited, and divided. This combination has produced what we now see—a non-Department of State.

BUT THAT IS NOT UNPREDICTABLE. AS THE result, in itself somewhat questionable, was the substitute offer of Polaris missiles for the British Navy. This was wrapped up in the scheme for multilateral deterrent, which Gen. de Gaulle was blandly invited to join.

IT IS NOT A UNIFIED DEPARTMENT, GUIDED BY A COMMON VIEWPOINT IMPOSED BY ITS LEADER, AND WORKING TOWARD A COMMON AIM, CLEARLY DEFINED FROM ABOVE. IT IS A CONGREGATION OF COMPETING VIEWPOINTS, CONTRASTING PERSONALITIES, AND CONFLICTING AMBITIONS.

AMONG THE NEW FRONTIERSMEN, THERE ARE TWO POPULAR EXCUSES FOR THIS IRATIONAL GAP IN THE MIDDLE OF AN ADMINISTRATION OTHERWISE NOTEABLE FOR ITS COMPETENCE AND COHERENCE.

IT IS SAID THAT NOTHING CAN BE DONE BECAUSE "THE PRESIDENT IS HIS OWN SECRETARY OF STATE." OR IT IS SAID THAT "THE REAL SECRETARY OF STATE" IS THE PRESIDENT'S BRILLIANT AND KNOWLEDGEABLE PERSONAL CHIEF OF STAFF FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS, MCGEORGE BUNDY.

BUT THAT IS NONSENSE. AS THE FOREIGN POLICY RECORD SHOWS, THE PRESIDENT AND BUNDY TOO, FOR THAT MATTER, NEED A DEPARTMENT TO WORK WITH. AS THE CASE OF THE DEFENCE DEPARTMENT SHOWS, THAT RELATIONSHIP IS FAR FROM IMPOSSIBLE.

AND AS LONG AS THE STATE DEPARTMENT IS REALLY A NON-DEPARTMENT, OTHER DAMAGING AFFAIRS WILL FOLLOW THE CANADIAN AFFAIR, THE SKYBOLT AFFAIR, AND ALL THE EARLIER ONES, QUITE POSSIBLY WITH ENDLESS RESULTS CALAMITOUS TO THE PRESIDENT HIMSELF.

Man and Atom

IT WOULD SEEM TIME THAT THE "MAN IN THE STREET" HAD SOMETHING TO SAY ABOUT ATOMIC WEAPONS.

FIRST—IS THERE ANY CHURCH WHICH CONDOSES THE USE OF ATOMIC WEAPONS?

SECONDLY—IS IT PURE HUMBUG TO CALL THEM "DEFENSIVE." ENGLAND, U.S.A. AND FRANCE HAVE SET OFF THEIR LARGER ONES IN TERRITORY FAR FROM HOME, EVEN EXPERIMENTALLY.

THIRDLY—THEY ARE NOT A MILITARY WEAPON AT ALL. THEY ARE DEFINITELY A GENOCIDAL WEAPON AND AGAINST WOMEN AND CHILDREN MAINLY, NOT TO MENTION NEXT GENERATION'S CHILDREN. THIS I THINK IS AMPLY PROVED BY THE USE OF THE TWO BOMBS DROPPED IN EARNEST.

HOW CAN ANYONE CALL HIMSELF CIVILIZED, LET ALONE CHRISTIAN, AND EVEN CONSIDER THEIR USE?

IN THIS PARTIALLY DEMOCRATIC COUNTRY I CANNOT VOTE ON A QUESTION OF THIS IMPORTANCE EXCEPT BY VOTING FOR A PARTY THAT TAKES A STAND AGAINST IT.

A. F. PRIESTLEY.

1201 Fort Street.

far back as 1948 I was awakened to the danger that the central government of my country was unreliable in matters of national security because, while air crew from Australia, New Zealand and (now derided) South Africa, were engaged in that vital operation, the Berlin air lift, no RCAF aircrews were engaged.

THE sad legacy, based on a fictitious isolationist policy has carried on. In Ottawa, the memory of the fine contributions of the past, and the valor displayed in the defense of freedom has faded, with many of our other ideals of a past generation.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IS FORTHRIGHT AND A REALIST. HE WISHES TO KNOW, AND HAS THE FULLEST JUSTIFICATION FOR ASKING, IF WE ARE OR ARE NOT, PREPARED TO CUT THE TINKERING AND FACE REALITY. HE REQUIRES US TO DROP THE MORE COMFORTABLE POSTURE OF SITTING WITH A LEG ON EACH SIDE OF THE WALL, AND COME DOWN FIRMLY WITH BOTH LEGS EITHER ON ONE OR OTHER SIDE.

BECAUSE OF THIS DEMAND FOR POSITIVE ACTION, OUR PRIME MINISTER REPLIES BY TAKING THE GRAVE AND ILL-CONSIDERED STEP OF RECALLING HIS AMBASSADOR FROM WASHINGTON, AND AT THE SAME TIME THREATENING TO DISSOLVE PARLIAMENT. IN MY VIEW, IF HE TAKES THIS ERUPTIVE ACTION, HE WILL NOT BE FOUND IN HIS UNSTEADY SEAT WHEN THE NEXT PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLES.

ALL THIS IS INFINITELY SAD, SAD FOR CANADA AND SAD FOR THE DEFENCE FORCES, FOR THEY ARE BEING ASKED TO MAINTAIN HIGH MORALE AND ESPRIT DE CORPS UNDER A HANDBRACK THAT, UNDER NO

Deer Come Dear

IT'S years since I sank my teeth into a hunk of venison, murmured polite compliments on its fine, game flavor and secretly I wished I was eating a piece of beef. My interest in deer is strictly sentimental. I'm a sucker for Felix Salten and the Walt Disney derivative, and I have paddled-on-summer evenings around the point from our place at Shawnigan to watch a doe and fawn come down to the water in the quiet of twilight to drink. It is a fine picture.

Except in a zoo, I have never seen a live, four-footed wolf. In my childhood, however, Ernest Thompson Seton sold me on Lobo and Blanca. Also, I've always been a bit skeptical about the Russian story in which people on the sledge kept jumping off to be consumed by the pursuing pack in order to let the central figure escape.

This could be a nice parable to warn gormetts of the danger of missing the main chance if they linger too long over the hors d'oeuvres. Somehow, though, the original yarn never seemed very convincing to me.

This puts me in a fairly detached position to consider Ontario's research program on wolves and the way they reduce the deer population—a question discussed in Maclean's magazine.

The researchers, from previous studies, seem to incline to the belief that—wolves should be given a chance to live and die as nature intended, without undue attack from man. Wolves, the studies show, kill deer, but so do snow, other predators and disease.

But deer, to some hunting lodge people and to commercial sports interests are dollars and cents. Therefore, say these interested parties, let's kill off the wolves and let hunters kill off the deer.

Either way you look at it, it isn't appealing to Bambi. Still, perhaps Bambi isn't quite the innocently appealing creature city folk take him to be.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

NEW YORK—On trains during road trips, Mike Ryba, the old St. Louis player, entertained himself by arranging a lineup of the ugliest men he had ever seen in baseball uniforms. The Ug team assembled by Mike is still considered definitive by many authorities on athletic pugilism. Modestly, Mike appointed himself a utility catcher on the club although many believed he possesses all the qualities to be a regular.

The clean-up hitter on Mike's Ug team is Yogi Berra, who has been assigned to do some coaching in the first-base box when he isn't catching for the Yankees. Rapturously, Mike gazed at Yogi the first time the great catcher made his appearance in the Yankee training field.

He walked around Yogi, examining him from all angles, like a terrier casing a fire hydrant. The view caused Mike to doubt his vision. It was like coming on the Mona Lisa hanging in the gent's room at Shor's.

"You all right?" Ryba asked.

"Never felt better," replied Yogi.

"You must be sick," insisted Ryba.

"I ain't sick," protested Berra.

"Look," Ryba said. "Anyone looks like you got to be sick. It isn't fair to the other guys on the team. I'm not going to take a regular's job away from him. Right now, I got to make you the playing manager of the Ugly Team. But I figure you can't look like this always. You must be sick."

Yogi Also Hits Them Off His Shoes

"This," said Berra, and not without pride, "is like I always look."

So Yogi became the playing manager of the Ug team. It will seem like a demotion when he takes up his post in the first-base box. The first-base coach is more tactful than pedagogic. His main duties are to hold the sweat jackets for pitchers and to fling the batting helmet toward the dugout after a hitter reaches first.

Among Yogi's duties will be the conducting of batting seminars. The extension of the strike zone which raises the frontier from the armpits to the shoulders will demand extra instruction by major league educators. It is the contention of Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford that Berra will be an enlightened lecturer on this subject.

"Yogi never hit a strike in his life," Whitey said. "He always hits the ball that's too high to be a strike. That's the pitch he likes best."

"I also hit them off my shoes," said Berra during a banquet at the Americana Hotel.

"You know what I'm going to do this season?" asked Mantle. "The first time they get two and three on me in a big ball game, I'm going to call time and holler for Yogi to come into the plate. Then I'm going to hand him the bat."

"I think Yogi ought to carry a whisk broom in his back pocket," Ford said. "Those jackets get awfully dusty lying on the bench."

"That's right," said Mantle. "He could also brush off a runner every time he slid back to the bag."

"You won't have to slide when I'm coaching," explained Yogi.

"I'll bet I know Yogi's system already," said Ford. "No matter whose pitching, Yogi'll say the same thing to every guy who gets to first. 'He'll say 'Look out, this guy got a good move.' Then if the guy gets picked off, he'll have a perfect alibi. He'll go back to the bench and tell the manager, 'I told him to watch out!'"

"What about talking to people?" asked a guy who was eavesdropping.

"Yogi's in the record book for a lot of things," said Ford. "He'll make it again for being ordered back into the box by umpires. He'll be out of the box half the time . . . talking to runners and first-basemen."

"I'll always have someone to talk to," said Berra, who is the American League's foremost conversationalist. "The first-base umpire's there all the while. When I'm catching, people always think I'm arguing with the plate umpire. All I'm doing is talking to him."

We Won't Be Wearing Mask As Coach

"You better be in shape," said Ford. "I don't blame you for working out in the gym this winter to get your legs in condition. You'll need good legs to chase after Mickey's helmet when he throws it after he strikes out."

"He won't have to chase it," said Mantle. "I'm going to hit him right on the head with it the first time I pop up."

The experiment to turn Berra into a leftfielder ended when Tommy Tresh was moved into the position from shortstop. After that, Yogi spelled Elston Howard as the catcher. But both Mantle and Ford claim a matter of public relations provoked the decision of Ralph Houk, the Yankee manager.

"Ralph didn't think it was right to make the fans look at Yogi for nine innings without a mask," said the pitcher.

He was reminded that Berra will be maskless as a first-base coach.

"How do you know?" asked Ford. "I'll bet Ralph makes him wear the mask."

"The runner's got an edge with Yogi," said Mantle. "Every time a pitcher looks over at first, he's hot going to feel so good if he has to see Yogi."

"That's why Yogi's a coach," said Ford.

Arrests May Wind Up Two-Year Dope Probe

LONDON (Reuters) — Two years of investigations in Britain and European countries into a multi-million-dollar horse doping racket are expected to end soon in the arrest of the ring leaders.

Newspaper reports say the names of a half dozen top men behind the biggest racing scandal in Britain for many years are known to the police.

DOPE FAVORITES

The gang is believed to have been operating for about 10 years and reaped profits of up to $1,500,000 in betting.

Generally, the favorite was doped to lose. Bookmakers in the gang would take as much money as possible on the favorite, knowing that it would almost certainly lose.

Credit for cracking the dope ring was given to 55-year-old private detective Robert Hill, who was hired by the Jockey Club.

VISITS TO STABLES

A link in the chain of the gang's activities came to his notice after trips to training stables by a Frenchwoman who was said to have visited 30 stables and learned their layout. The Jockey Club sent a letter to all trainers warning them of her activities.

The first crack in the ring came in January when a one-time jockey was jailed in the south coast resort of Brighton for four years for conspiring to dope horses.

Canuck Contingent Cut — Still Second Largest

VANCOUVER (CP)—A contingent of 165 athletes and officials—cut more than 21 per cent below original plans—will represent Canada at the Pan American Games in Brazil this spring.

Coaches and officials have been given team quotas and have until Friday to decide who to leave behind.

The team will operate on $130,000 during the more than three weeks it will be out of the country—less than $800 for each member.

Allan McGavin, chairman of the Canadian Pan American Association, announced the team make-up Tuesday night following a two-hour meeting with committee members representing the '15 sports involved.

It will be the second largest squad ever to represent Canada in international competition. The largest was the 206-member team which travelled to Chicago for the 1959 Pan American Games.

Original plans called for 210 persons to represent Canada in Brazil from April 20 to May 8, but the Canadian Olympic Association, which controls grants to amateur associations, told the Pan-Am committee last week funds were not available for a group that size.

TRACK SQUAD SLICED

Biggest cut was on the track and field and rowing continents. Rowing, counting on 19 members, was allowed 11 athletes and an official; track planning on 25 members, drew 17 athletes and two officials.

Said Ken Twigg of Toronto, national track and field chairman of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association:

"I wouldn't want to question any other sport, but it's dis- appointing a country this size can't produce the money to send a full team. We were second to the United States in track at the last Pan-American games."

The team had 30 competitors that year.

Study Ordered on Ferry For Comox-Powell R. Run

The provincial government is launching an immediate study on the possibility of a Toll Authority ferry service between Comox and Powell River.

Dan Campbell, Social Credit MLA for Comox, made the announcement Tuesday night.

He said the move followed talks he held with Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi.

The highways department would do the study and it recommends a ferry action will be taken "immediately," said Mr. Campbell.

Apparently this would kill a private bid for a ferry service.

Mr. Campbell said such a bid is being made but the would-be operator had asked for government assurance there would be no later takeover without adequate compensation.

COURTENAY — A record District 71 school budget of $1,666,000 has been sent to Courtenay, Comox and Cumberland municipal councils for approval.

The figure is $167,000 higher than 1962.

School board secretary-treasurer C. N. Peterson explained most of the increase will go to repairs and maintenance on the district's $3,000,000 school plant.

Salary increases will take $57,000 or 35 per cent of the increase.

Mr. Peterson reported a seven per cent increase in enrollment required nine more teachers, more supplies, transportation and books. Emergency classroom space required extra caretaking and utility charges.

The budget requires approval of the three councils and a meeting of rural representatives is set for Feb. 15.

DUNCAN Employment conditions in the Cowichan Valley during January were satisfactory, according to R. S. Robinson, manager of the Duncan National Employment Service.

He reported an unusual high level of employment in the logging industry, but said cases of blindness have resulted from careless accidents, according to Hugh Heath, president of the Nanaimo branch, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, who spoke here in connection with "White Cane Week," which is being observed this week.

"It would be well to realize that 50 per cent of the cases of blindness occurring could be prevented by early medical treatments and safety consciousness for the prevention of accidents," he said.

$1 MILLION EXPANSION AT PULP MILL

Plans for $1,000,000 worth of improvements at the Port Alice pulp mill on Quatsino Sound, at the north end of Vancouver Island, was announced in Vancouver Tuesday by Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd.

The Port Alice mill, purchased from Alaska Pine in 1954, is one of the oldest on the north end of the Island. Rayonier will have spent more than $15,000,000 for capital improvements there with completion of the new program.

In addition to production of chemical cellulose at Port Alice, Rayonier has four logging operations in the area. It also operates a shingle and sawmill at Honeymoon Bay.

No bones in your house either?

MILK-BONE satisfies the bone hunger of your dog.

A dog needs to chew, and knows it. In the absence of a bone, even the best-trained dog will find something else to chew—often something he shouldn't. But there are few bones in today's kitchens. Many that are available are not safe or good for your dog. That's why the modern dog goes bone-hungry.

The answer is MILK-BONE—the biscuit with the real bone shape that makes wonderful chewing, without a real bone's tendency to splinter or upset the digestion. MILK-BONE also gives your dog all the important nourishment found in milk, meat, bone-meal and vegetables. Get MILK-BONE in the biscuit size that suits the size of your dog—regular or large.

Everybody Has Opinions and They're 4 to 1 for Nuclear Arms in Canada

In a random sampling of opinions taken by The Times today, Victorians were four to one in favor of nuclear weapons for Canada.

It also revealed that nuclear arms must be one of the most discussed subjects in Canadian homes today. Almost everyone approached had an opinion.

But the answers by some people indicated they were a bit confused on the issue. Several thought, for example, Bomarc missiles are for offensive use.

A typical comment from a person with this idea is that "Canada would be justified in using nuclear weapons in extreme circumstances."

In actual fact the nuclear arms issue is about weapons that are designed mainly for defensive purposes. Mrs. Mary Williamson, 1533 Redfern, was one of the most outspoken in her opposition to Canada acquiring nuclear arms.

Said she: "If Canada were loaded with nuclear arms she couldn't defend herself. They say the nuclear deterrent is keeping the peace. Well, each side has enough deterrent right now."

John Barnard, 4150 Quadra, agreed with her. He asked: "What difference will a few Bomars make to North American defence?"

Mr. Barnard said the idea of engaging in nuclear warfare is insane. But if Canada took nuclear weapons from the U.S. arsenal then Canadians "would be joining the merry race of people who think war is an answer."

Mrs. L. Mackenzie, 2351 Chelsea Place, represents what she describes as the "let George do it" school of thought. She said she prefers to depend on U.S. strength to defend North America.

"That might not be the right spirit exactly. But I hate to see the spread of nuclear weapons," she added.

Mrs. D. Fyvie of 430 Springfield is against nuclear weapons because she thinks they are not needed.

"Since both Russia and the U.S. have nuclear weapons neither will go to war with them."

Those who favored the acquiring of the arms usually did so reluctantly. But they felt it is a necessity.

Mrs. Edith Nelson, 1609 Redfern, expressed it this way: "We can't be caught unprepared."

Dr. W. J. Cochrane, 1760 Green Oaks Terrace, said the answer to the question can be seen by anyone who looks at a map.

"Look where Canada sits geographically. We're right in the middle. We must defend ourselves."

Dr. Cochrane said it is "Utopian" for anyone to think Canada does not need to look after itself.

The need for Canada to honor its commitment to NATO by acquiring nuclear arms was mentioned by A. J. Hodgson, 912 Carlton. He said it is essential that Canada work with the U.S. on continental defence.

Mrs. Mabel Yee, 3059 Ladronne, doesn't like the idea of Canada getting the weapons. But she "more or less favors it" because of the need for protection against nuclear attack.

Canada should acquire the needed arms "not just because of our NATO obligations but to protect ourselves," said Archibald

Pearce, 1015 Rockland. Anyways, he added, "we should do what we promised to do."

"What is the use of acquiring all those nuclear carriers if we don't get the arms to put in them?" asked C. O. Smythies, 5175 Polson Terrace. He said the carriers aren't much use without being nuclear armed.

Canada is a part of North America and should assume part of the responsibility for defending the continent, according to Ward Stephens, 4574 Van freight Drive.

Since nuclear weapons are needed for adequate defence; he said, then Canada should accept them.

The apparent attitude of many persons was summed up by Mrs. D. B. Roxburgh,

291 King George Terrace. Said she: "Canada does not have a great deal of choice in the matter. If anything happened between Russia and the U.S. we would be in the middle of it."

"I don't like the idea of us acquiring nuclear weapons. But I think we have to have them."

Monte
Roberts

For many years, I have puzzled over the question of why women wear the kind of hats they do.

Just the other day, I finally got a reasonable explanation from a lady whose choice in hats is anything but.

"You can laugh all you like at my hats," she said. "But I wear the kind of hats I wear because of their therapeutic value."

"You see, I am essentially a non-conformist. But being unfortunately a member of the female sex, I am not permitted to conform, if I make myself clear."

"Male conformists are allowed much more leeway in non-conforming than women. Just to mention one factor, men can grow weird and wonderful beards and thus express their individuality."

Women are not permitted to grow weird and wonderful beards.

"Therefore my only chance to express myself as a non-conformist is through my hats, and you can stop laughing now."

Speaking of beards—and I wish we weren't—isn't it time certain male members of our population realized the centennial celebrations are over?

Let them give their whiskers a rest until the next centennial, namely Canada's, comes along in 1967.

Meanwhile, I am thinking of starting a crusade to ban the beard.

A certain very young lady of my acquaintance was much taken with the Mary Martin TV production of Peter Pan Sunday.

When she went to bed at the conclusion of the program, she asked her mother if it would be all right for her to go out the window with Peter Pan.

"Certainly," said her mother.

The young lady thought for a minute. "But perhaps I'd better not go," she said. "He might not get me back in time for bowling."

It is all a matter of perspective.

As the teletypes chattered with earth-shattering news from Ottawa and Washington, news of politics and nuclear arms and death and destruction, there was a brief pause for a glimpse of sanity.

A report from Olympia, Washington, told of measures designed to protect ladybugs.

World Peace Scientist To Speak Here

The founder of the Canadian Peace Research Institute, Dr. Norman Z. Alcock, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress next Wednesday.

Vancouver-born Dr. Alcock launched his CPRI last year with a nation-wide campaign for funds to establish a research program in Canada.

At that time it was planned to form the CPRI on a university campus but it has not been established so far.

The topic on which Dr. Alcock will speak is "Knowledge versus ignorance."

Dr. Alcock is a distinguished scientist and his view is that scientific techniques and approach must be applied to the problem of achieving peace in the world.

His viewpoint was developed in a booklet "The Bridge of Reason" which outlined the program for the CPRI.

Dr. Alcock worked on the development of radar in England during the Second World War. After the war he was employed as a research physicist at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. in Chalk River.

In 1950 he founded his own company to apply nuclear research to industrial purposes. In 1957 he became general manager of a division of Curtiss-Wright in Canada, and in 1958 was appointed engineering director.

In the fall of 1959 he began his study of the social sciences in relation to disarmament and peace. This led eventually to his plan for a Canadian Peace Research Institute.

BULWARK

The plan involves construction of a lower promenade in front of the Causeway so that the harbor floor can be dredged.

Defeat of the government also is bound to affect another Victoria concern—when is last year's grant-in-lieu of taxes going to arrive.

Ironically, dissolution probably will speed the $100,000-plus payment because now it can be done by governor-general.

ECONOMIC

When the city began the fund, with sale of the grain elevator and $35,000 annual payments since then, it only expected to have $736,772 by the end of 1962 but higher interest earnings created the surplus.

City Hall will begin drawing on the fund for the first time next year—taking out $251,000 to cover a gap in revenue created by this year's final payment from the water district.

Annual payments will continue from the fund until 1970.

The 1st Battalion, PPCLI, will hold a seaward firing practice from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 18 at Albert Head Camp. High explosive and tracer will be fired from 160-mm recoilless rifles.

DR. M. WILLIAMS

Driver of a car which entered the Douglas-Hillside Roundabout the wrong way after colliding with another vehicle, was fined a total of $400 in city police court Tuesday.

John G. Williams, 1260 Oxford, was fined $250 for impaired driving, and $150 for failing to remain at the accident which occurred at about 12:25 a.m. at Douglas and Topaz. He pleaded guilty to both charges.

DEAR ABBY...

Don't Waste Time!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago a friend of ours came to us with a hard luck story. She wanted a divorce, so my husband paid for it. Then he invited her and her two small children to move in with us "for a while." We have a small house, three children and I am expecting again, so you know we are crowded. I go out to work every day and this friend stays home and cares for all the children. I keep telling my husband we have to get this woman out of the house, but he says she's like sister to him. People are talking. How do I get rid of her without hurting her feelings? — NEVROUS

DEAR ABBY: Our 15-year-old boy is our problem. He won't do a thing unless he is paid for it. He worked last summer at a garage and he hardly ever comes home without a bag and baggage (which is what his father thinks will cure him).

Should we just put up with this kind of behavior until he is 18 and then let the army train him? — CORNERED

DEAR CORNERED: Your son needs some affection and real understanding. Do you "order" him to do things, or do you ask him properly? I have yet to meet the normal 15-year-old boy who wouldn't respond to a little praise, a lot of love and a modest incentive.

DEAR ABBY: Since I don't care especially for diamonds, I do not want a diamond engagement ring. Is that the only official kind of ring to symbolize an engagement? Any suggestions?

SOON TO WED

DEAR SOON: It's the most traditional engagement stone, but ANY ring can symbolize an engagement. Since you don't like diamonds, how about an oyster's best friend—the pearl?

CONFIDENTIAL TO BRIDGEPORT: I am STILL disgusted with pointed-toe shoes. As one woman put it, "The only thing you can say for them is they are wonderful for killing bugs in corners."

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to ABBY, BOX 3365, BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. for Abby's new booklet, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Want to Help? Reverse Thinking

Non-Indians anxious to be of help in adjustment of Indian-Canadian to society in general were advised to do a "reverse turn" in their thinking by R. H. S. Sampson, guest speaker at Tuesday afternoon session of the 69th annual meeting of Local Council of Women, held in the Public Library Music Room.

"Instead of looking for differences we should look for things we share in common. If this isn't done we may head into trouble and not accomplish very much."

Mr. Sampson is superintendent of Indian affairs for the Cowichan agency.

"Community groups," he stressed, "can play a big part by developing favorable public opinion."

The Indians' lot, he continued, can be helped greatly by education and community development.

"Provincial school authorities are, without exception, in favor of integration of Indian children into the public school system. But, no Indian child can attend without application from his or her family or group."

He added that two stumbling blocks to integration and secondary education were "the apathy of the young people themselves and the lack of interest of their parents in seeing that their children are better equipped to obtain employment in primary and secondary industries."

Indian leaders, said the speaker, are very much aware that their people must be encouraged to better their conditions. With this aim in view, many Indian bands are being induced by their leaders to participate in community developments.

"It is important to remember," he continued, "that any help to the Indians must be geared to what the Indian is prepared to do for himself."

He asked, "How is all this interest reacting on the Indian?" The Indian often feels strongly about his ethnic back-

WORK FOR OTHERS

In a Christian citizenship panel presented Tuesday afternoon, Miss A. Black, social worker in the Royal Jubilee Hospital psychiatric ward, stressed the need for more understanding and help for mentally ill patients.

Mental illness, she said, "is a matter of degree". It included retardation, senility, epileptics, alcoholics, patients who have suffered from strokes, and patients who are emotionally ill or psychotic. She added, "many of these patients only need a friend and a little help to get them back into society".

The president of Victoria's Citizenship Council, Mrs. H. L. Smith, pointed out that it was to help new Canadians that the council was formed.

Medicare May Substitute For Grant Boost—Smith

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Will the government announce a medicare plan for B.C. in Friday's budget?

Victoria Socred J. Donald Smith Tuesday became the third government member to boost medicare at the current session of the legislature.

He suggested Premier Bennett might introduce medicare instead of doubling the home-owner grant to $100—promise he made in the 1962 federal election campaign.

"We may be bringing in medicare in place of this," he told the House.

"We'll all know Friday."

That's when Premier Bennett will read his budget speech.

Mr. Smith said the B.C. government "years ago" told Ottawa it favored medicare as long as it was a national plan.

In the absence of their support we should bring in forth a medical plan."

Earlier in the session Socreds Bert Price of Vancouver and Cyril Sheiford of Omineca advocated a medicare plan. The New Democratic Party has also been saying that the government will do something.

Mr. Smith said that if the homeowner grant is doubled, only 900 persons in Victoria would have to pay any school taxes.

He said there are 10,130 resident homeowners within the city.

On the basis of the 1962 assessment 457 of these would pay only $1 taxes; 8,773 would pay no school taxes; 900 would pay a portion of school taxes.

Mr. Smith also protested the electricity rates charged by B.C. Hydro for cooking in southern Vancouver Island restaurants.

The "secondary commercial cooking rates" on the Island are 51 per cent higher than those paid by restaurants in the lower mainland.

The Social Credit government, Mr. Smith said, espoused the slogan "Fair treatment for all" special favors to none."

SEND OUT ORDER

"I hope before the minister retires this evening he will send out an order," Mr. Smith said. "There must be immediate action to have this corrected."

He didn't say which minister—presumably the premier.

The Victoria Socred also proposed that the Liquor Act be amended to allow live music in licensed premises.

"A great deal of talent is going begging," he said, "while we adopt the policy of placing juke boxes in beer parlors."

He said he doesn't think live music is a sin. Less liquor would be consumed, he said.

Young 'Envoy' Boosts UN At Schools

A young man with a mission came to Victoria Tuesday.

His name is Michael Clague. His purpose: to interest high school students in the aims and methods of the United Nations.

A 1962 political science graduate of UBC, Mr. Clague at 22 is full-time national organizer of the youth section of the United Nations' Association of Canada.

12 CLUBS HERE

There are about 2,000 students in 300 high school UN clubs throughout Canada, according to Mr. Clague. About a dozen of these clubs are in Victoria.

Mr. Clague is here to help these clubs arrange programs that will educate students about the UN's aims.

From all over Canada 40 students will be selected this summer to go for a seven-day seminar at UN headquarters in New York, he announced.

A model assembly, patterned after the UN General Assembly, will be held at Norfolk House School March 1 and 2. About 100 students will attend from Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and Seattle.

Checkpoint On Fruit 'Nonsense'

A Social Credit member of the legislature Tuesday said there should be no limit on the amount of fruit Canadians can buy from Canadians.

Irvin Corbett (SC-Yale) was asking the government during the throne speech debate to stop the checking of cars and station wagons at the check point at Flood, near Hope.

He said it is a "bunch of nonsense" that Canadians should stop at a check point so that the government can check how much fruit has been purchased from other Canadians.

He said provincial regulations forbid any individual from buying more than 20 cases of fruit for his own use.

"I don't think there should be any limit on what any person in Canada buys for his own use. We shouldn't have to have any check stations."

He said if the government wishes to maintain the check point for other purposes it should be moved to a safer location. One person had been killed there and others could be.

Men Plead Guilty

Roland Hill, 23, of 1303 Yates, and Robert H. Smith, 20, of 306 St. James, pleaded guilty in Sooke police court Monday to breaking into Milnes Landing High School and Sooke Building Supply, Ltd., overnight Thursday.

A quantity of tools and some cash were taken.

They were remanded for probation report and sentence to next Tuesday.

SPACE BIRDS TO CRY 'OUCH'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will try to orbit a huge space bird late next year. Its wings, spanned 96 feet, will be sensitive enough to yield an electronic "ouch" when hit by meteors.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced Tuesday it will negotiate with Fairchild Stratos Corporation of Hagerstown, Md., on a contract to build two such birds.

Each will weigh two tons. They are slated to ride into space on the eighth and ninth test shots of the Saturn I rocket systems, under development to carry the first Americans to the moon.

'HE MUST BE MAD'

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker's attitude on nuclear arms is the subject of a cartoon in The Evening Standard.

The drawing, by Vicki, shows President Kennedy and other world leaders peering over a high stone wall at Diefenbaker, standing alone.

Kennedy, beckoning to the Canadian leader, comments: "He must be mad—he does not want nuclear weapons."

With Kennedy are Prime Minister Macmillan, President de Gaulle, Chancellor Adenauer, Premier Khrushchev and China's Mao Tse-tung.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—That's all they were talking about around Broadway—the secret reason that Merv Griffin lost his TV show. It took our hottest new comic, Jackie Mason, to put it in words.

"It's because he got an award for having such a good show," shrugged Jackie, to whom all mysteries are "very clear."

"As soon as you get an award, you always lose your show," Jackie told the tabloids at Lindy's.

"Happened to Bob Newhart, too," Jackie said. "Now the trick is not to get an award."

"This trick I have mastered, NBC should hire me. I would guarantee not to get an award and I would deliver. I've been

FOR ANIMALS

Tracking Transistor Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP)—Where goes the wandering Albatross? Where are the penguins of Antarctica when the mating season passes? Whether the European stork, the Caribbean turtle, the Canada goose?

Now comes a suggestion: Track their mysterious migrations from a satellite in space.

The questions have long bothered scientists: Where do these animals migrate and why?

Dr. Dwain Warner, curator of ornithology at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History, proposes that animals be tagged with small transistor radios weighing $\frac{1}{2}$ to two ounces.

Then, wherever the wandering animal goes, it broadcasts a signal. A satellite, circling the globe, could catch the signal and send it back to scientists who could plot the animal's location. Warner writes in the current issue of the magazine Natural History.

How to Reduce Swollen, Painful Piles

Relieve Itching, Soreness and Pain without ointments, pile pipes or suppositories

Here is a nice, clean, easy way to shrink or reduce swollen, painful piles without the inconvenience of ointments, pipes or suppositories. The secret is one Hen-Roid tablet, with water, two or three times a day. By effective means, it shrinks and eases the irritation, helps break up and smoothly pass off hardened intestinal waste. Costs only a few pennies a day if you like it. NO COST otherwise as your money will be cheerfully refunded. Call or write today, 100% pleased. Ask at any drug store for Hen-Roid Internal Pile Treatment.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects will receive valuable prizes.

The first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Robert Domina, age 13, of Staten Island, N.Y., for his question:

Where is the home of the mynah bird?

In his native home, the mynah bird is considered a pest. He is three times the size of our pesky starlings, five times as noisy and 10 times as sassy. In fact, he is a super-sized starling. His original home was India, though he is now found flying wild in several other tropical countries.

The starlings and the mynah birds are noisy nuisances that belong in the bird family Sturnidae. All of them originated in the Old World, and there was a time when America was free from the flocks of his rowdy scrappy starlings that now squabble on our lawns, fight our native birds, steal our fruit and even clutter up the runways of our airports.

Some unknown person, who should get a demerit, introduced a few starlings to the eastern United States. The

Mynah Bird Sassy Fellow

The common mynah wears glossy plumage of black or dark brown. There are white patches on his wings, and his head may be adorned with bare patches of skin called wattles. The crested mynah bird is crowned with a tuft of feathers. The talking mynah bird of India often becomes a household pet, because he can be taught to imitate the human voice. He can parrot a few words, sing a few notes off-key and even whistle. There are quite a few of these pet mynah birds in America. Let's hope that they do not escape and make themselves at home in the wild.

Like his small cousin the starling, the mynah bird is a very sloppy housekeeper. The ground is littered with straws from his shaggy nest, and where there is one nest, there are scores of others. The sassy fellow is so bold that a human being can walk within a few feet of him, but sometimes a neighborhood cat can best him. This happens when Mr. Mynah gets into a heated squabble with another mynah bird.

not getting awards in cafes why shouldn't I not get awards in TV?"

Groucho Marx, Ed Sullivan, Jack Paar, Sammy Davis, Steve Allen and Jan Murray claim that Mason, a 32-year-old bachelor ex-rabbit, is the funniest new mynah man.

Thanks to TV spots, Jackie's cafe salary has gone to $8,000 a week—though Julie Podell, Copacabana owner, pays him only $5,000.

"Podell says to me, 'I'm losing money on you. I'm losing $4,000 on you. I want you to come back next year, the same price.'

Jackie looked puzzled. "Could a guy be so desperate to lose $4,000 next year, he got to have me back? I'm holding out for a raise, so he can lose even more on me!"

People are always asking Jackie, "When did you start in show business?"

"I tell them 'yesterday.' They say, 'yesterday?' For just startin' yesterday, you're great! For a guy in the business six years," he says, "maybe I'm not too fantastic."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL—Fat Jack E. Leonard, the comedian, is very ill in Chicago. In our poll to choose "the man with the most sex appeal," JFK is neck-and-neck with movie stars Cary Grant, Tony Quinn and Rock Hudson. The gals who nominated JFK were Susan Strasberg and Bernice Massi.

Now comes a suggestion: Track their mysterious migrations from a satellite in space.

The questions have long bothered scientists: Where do these animals migrate and why?

Dr. Dwain Warner, curator of ornithology at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History, proposes that animals be tagged with small transistor radios weighing $\frac{1}{2}$ to two ounces.

Then, wherever the wandering animal goes, it broadcasts a signal. A satellite, circling the globe, could catch the signal and send it back to scientists who could plot the animal's location. Warner writes in the current issue of the magazine Natural History.

Leftovers to Grow New Meals in Space

WASHINGTON (AP)—A research firm is working on tissue-culture techniques it hopes might enable space travelers to grow one meal from the scraps of a preceding one, and so on and on.

The ultimate result of the experiments conceivably could be production of food items such as tomatoes without leaves, stems or roots and steaks of controlled weight, shape and tenderness without growing an animal.

A sample of the tissue—a sample of steak for example—is placed in this culture. Under strict conditions of light, temperature and sterility control, the tissue grows.

The tissue culture first became known, publicly in the 1940s, when a Nobel Prize was awarded to a team growing monkey tissue culture for polio vaccine applications.

In a recent press release the firm's president, Paul Ritt, said some "very modest results" have been obtained in Melpar laboratories, but estimated it might be three or four years before the experiments succeed on a significant scale.

The process requires a solution of nutrients containing the more than 90 substances that nature provides to growing organisms.

How Big a Part Did JFK Play?

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post says the Jan. 30 state department public criticism of Canadian nuclear policy was not concocted on the spur of the moment nor was it a surprise to the White House.

Saying diplomacy requires that the state department take the "rap" for the public criticism, the Post suggests that President Kennedy and his administration were well aware of all the Canada-U.S. nuclear developments.

This follows a report by Washington Star columnist Doris Fleen suggesting that the public criticism, which Prime Minister Diefenbaker described as an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs, was designed to help Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson in his fight against Diefenbaker.

Without mentioning any names, the columnist said a "rather important name" is linked to the speculation that some well-meaning friend here decided to give Mr. Pearson a hand.

The Post said the Kennedy administration decided to make the statement public because Diefenbaker, in his Jan. 25 speech in the House of Commons, had decided to give Mr. Pearson a hand.

OTTAWA—April 8 was set today as the date of the next federal election.

On that Monday Canadian voters will have a chance to reconsider their collective decision of last June 18 when they elected a "House of minorities" with no one party able to claim definite voting control of the House of Commons.

Tuesday night saw the collapse of the minority Diefenbaker government.

Its ability to survive previous voting crises came to an end as the three opposition parties joined forces to decisively vote non-confidence in the administration.

Today Prime Minister John Diefenbaker recommended and got from Governor-General George Vanier dissolution of Parliament and setting of the April 8 election date.

Mr. Diefenbaker was driven through a snow storm in a Canadian Army limousine from Parliament Hill to Government House to seek dissolution.

He began his meeting with the governor-general at 12:50 p.m. EST and emerged at 1:12 to announce dissolution and the election date.

He also announced a pro forma date for the opening of the next sitting of Parliament—May 16; this is simply a formality required by law, however, and does not necessarily mean Parliament will meet on that date.

The prime minister appeared relaxed after his meeting with the governor-general. He displayed confidence that his party was behind him, despite widely spreading rumors of a revolt against his leadership from within the cabinet.

Dief Claims 'Overwhelming Support'

A morning caucus of more than 100 Conservative MPs, he said, should not be described as having given him a vote of confidence. It was rather "the most overwhelming support I have received in all my years in public life."

He told reporters he expected to have no further resignations from the cabinet, but would have to fill perhaps two vacancies.

Those would be the vacancy left by the resignation Sunday of Defence Minister Douglas Harkness, and the vacancy yet to be created by the resignation of Public Works Minister David Fulton, who has become B.C. leader of the Conservative party.

Mr. Diefenbaker would not

'We'll Knock Hell Out of the Grits'

He emerged arm-in-arm with the Prime Minister. Both men beamed and Mr. Hees said:

"We are on the road and we are going to knock hell out of the Grits."

Mr. Hees categorically denied any "revolt" from within the cabinet against the Prime Minister's leadership. So did minister without portfolio Wallace McCutcheon—the cabinet is united, absolutely, the senator said—and Finance Minister George Nowlan who said "there is no dissension".

But Transport Minister Leon Balcer and Associate Defence Minister Pierre Savigny admitted after the caucus that it was "the best we ever had."

Loud cheers echoed in the closed Tory meeting as the prime minister appealed for his MPs to back him through the coming election.

Tory caucus chairman George Hees said after the meeting that it was "the best we ever had."

They had had some differences with the Prime Minister.

However, that had been cleared up, they said, and all members of the cabinet were going into the campaign united.

Both men, however, refused to say whether their differences related to the leadership question.

In any event the backbenchers clearly had come to the Prime Minister's support. One report had it that they had told the dissenting cabinet ministers to "lay off," warning that it would be disaster for the party to get into any internal fights at the beginning of an election campaign.

Everybody Has Opinions and They're 4 to 1 for Nuclear Arms in Canada

In a random sampling of opinions taken by The Times today, Victorians were four to one in favor of nuclear weapons for Canada.

It also revealed that nuclear arms must be one of the most discussed subjects in Canadian homes today. Almost everyone approached had an opinion.

But the answers by some people indicated they were a bit confused on the issue. Several thought, for example, Bomarc missiles are for offensive use.

A typical comment from a person with this idea is that "Canada would be justified in using nuclear weapons in extreme circumstances."

In actual fact the nuclear arms issue is about weapons that are designed mainly for defensive purposes. Mrs. Mary Williamson, 1533 Redfern, was one of the most outspoken in her opposition to Canada acquiring nuclear arms.

Said she: "If Canada were loaded with nuclear arms she couldn't defend herself. They say the nuclear deterrent is keeping the peace. Well, each side has enough deterrent right now."

John Barnard, 4150 Quadra, agreed with her. He asked: "What difference will a few Bomars make to North American defence?"

Mr. Barnard said the idea of engaging in nuclear warfare is insane. But if Canada took nuclear weapons from the U.S. arsenal then Canadians "would be joining the merry race of people who think war is an answer."

Canada should acquire the needed arms "not just because of our NATO obligations but to protect ourselves," said Archibald

Pearce, 1015 Rockland. Any way, he added, "we should do what we promised to do."

"What is the use of acquiring all those nuclear carriers if we don't get the arms to put in them?" asked C. O. Smythies, 5175 Polson Terrace. He said the carriers aren't much use without being nuclear armed.

Canada is a part of North America and should assume part of the responsibility for defending the continent, according to Ward Stephens, 4574 Vancreight Drive.

Since nuclear weapons are needed for adequate defence, he said, then Canada should accept them.

The apparent attitude of many persons was summed up by Mrs. D. B. Roxburgh, 291 King George Terrace.

Said she: "Canada does not have a great deal of choice in the matter. If anything happened between Russia and the U.S., we would be in the middle of it."

"I don't like the idea of us acquiring nuclear weapons. But I think we have to have them."

For many years, I have puzzled over the question of why women wear the kind of hats they do.

Just the other day, I finally got a reasonable explanation from a lady whose choice in hats is anything but.

"You can laugh all you like at my hats," she said. "But I wear the kind of hats I wear because of their therapeutic value."

"You see, I am essentially a non-conformist. But being, unfortunately, a member of the female sex, I am not permitted to conform, if I make myself clear."

"Male conformists are allowed much more leeway in non-conforming than women. Just to mention one factor, men can grow weird and wonderful beards and thus express their individuality."

Women are not permitted to grow weird and wonderful beards.

"Therefore my only chance to express myself as a non-conformist is through my hats, and you can stop laughing now."

Speaking of beards—and I wish we weren't—isn't it time certain male members of our population realized the centennial celebrations are over?

Let them give their whiskers a rest until the next centennial, namely Canada's, comes along in 1967.

Meanwhile, I am thinking of starting a crusade to ban the beard.

A certain very young lady of my acquaintance was much taken with the Mary Martin TV production of Peter Pan Sunday.

When she went to bed at the conclusion of the program, she asked her mother if it would be all right for her to go out the window with Peter Pan.

"Certainly," said her mother.

The young lady thought for a minute. "But perhaps I'd better not go," she said. "He might not get me back in time for bowling."

It is all a matter of perspective.

As the teletypes chattered with earth-shattering news from Ottawa and Washington, news of politics and nuclear arms and death and destruction, there was a brief pause for a glimpse of sanity.

A report from Olympia, Washington, told of measures designed to protect ladybugs.

World Peace Scientist To Speak Here

The founder of the Canadian Peace Research Institute, Dr. Norman Z. Alcock, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress next Wednesday.

Vancouver-born Dr. Alcock launched his CPRI last year with a nation-wide campaign for funds to establish a research program in Canada.

At that time it was planned to form the CPRI on a university campus but it has not been established so far.

The topic on which Dr. Alcock will speak is "Knowledge versus ignorance."

Dr. Alcock is a distinguished scientist and his view is that scientific techniques and approach must be applied to the problem of achieving peace in the world.

His viewpoint was developed in a booklet "The Bridge of Reason" which outlined the program for the CPRI.

Dr. Alcock worked on the development of radar in England during the Second World War. After the war he was employed as a research physicist at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. in Chalk River.

In 1950 he founded his own company to apply nuclear research to industrial purposes. In 1957 he became general manager of a division of Curtiss-Wright in Canada, and in 1958 was appointed engineering director.

In the fall of 1959 he began his study of the social sciences in relation to disarmament and peace. This led eventually to his plan for a Canadian Peace Research Institute.

The accident occurred at about 3 p.m.

Harold Gardner was elected president of the Victoria Insurance Agents' Association Tuesday. He succeeds Gordon Dunaway.

Jack Roberts was named vice-president.

The association's 42nd annual meeting—in the Colonial Inn—elected the following members to serve on the executive committee: John McTavish, Max Stewart, Gordon Brown, Charles Ellington, and in 1958 was appointed engineering director.

In the fall of 1959 he began his study of the social sciences in relation to disarmament and peace. This led eventually to his plan for a Canadian Peace Research Institute.

Sacred Integrity 'Never Higher,' Gaglardi Claims

By FRANK BUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi bolsterously defended his Social Credit government in the legislature Tuesday, saying its integrity had never been higher.

His 55-minute high-volume speech blew up a flurry of crossfire with the Opposition a minute after he told the House he was going to make his case "very carefully and very quietly."

He flew through the rest.

The minister called Cedric Cox, the NDP member who went to Cuba, "A fellow fawner of that bearded flea circus outfit."

He said of new member Dr. Pat McGee of the Liberals: "He's a nice little fellow, maybe he belongs in the university."

He said of the NDP: "It would mean a drying up of

Saanich Set To Join Traffic Study

Saanich has agreed to share costs with other municipalities for an area-wide road and traffic survey.

The survey will be conducted by the Capital Region Planning Board.

Council Monday approved the expenditure of $12,000 as its share of costs for the survey which will cover road development for the Greater Victoria area.

Couns. Joseph Casey and Gregory Cook were the only two councillors who opposed participation in the survey.

Coun. Cook felt the Saanich engineering and planning departments could make a road survey on their own.

"That would be poor economy," replied Coun. Robert Ostler. "Our engineering department could not undertake the job without taking on additional staff. If we did that it would cost us more money."

"Apart from that we would not get an area-wide survey," added Reeve Stanley Murphy.

City Merchants' Advice Wanted

Merchants should be consulted before final decisions are made on a one-way street system downtown, Mayor R. B. Wilson said Monday.

He added he was pleased to see "a start has been made" in mapping out a partial one-way street.

Traffic committee chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney said an interim plan is under discussion involving Government, Douglas, Fort and Yates as one-way streets.

Earlier, the committee recommended that city council ask that the government provide off-street parking for its liquor stores.

"The business in this case can well afford it even if they have to obtain expensive property," noted Ald. A. W. Toone.

NEW CHAIRMAN'S WARNING

Tougher Sledding Ahead For United Appeal Drive

Although officials of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria are proud of the moderate success achieved in 1962, a shadow has already been cast over the 1963 campaign months before it has begun.

This was apparent at the 25th annual meeting and awards banquet Tuesday evening at the Empress Hotel.

In his first address as chairman of the 1963 campaign, John Wallace said the task ahead is not going to be easy.

He said the slowdown in the economy usually anticipated in an election year combined with the YM-YWCA campaign for a $1,100,000 new building and the expected drop in Victoria's tourist trade for 1963 would make Chest dollars even harder to find this year.

INTO RESERVES

As the 1962 campaign fell $10,000 short of its objectives, in a year of comparatively good local economy, the Chest still was forced to dip into its reserves for an additional $17,545.87, to meet the requirements of its 23 member agencies, now operating on minimum budgets.

In his final address as president of the Community Chest, George Gregory said "the Chest in 1937 came a good deal closer to charity than the Chest does today."

"While we can look forward to the future with confidence I commend to the citizens of Greater Victoria no less than to the incoming board of directors that serious consideration be given to the position occupied by the Community Chest itself."

REALLY UNITED

"We have in recent years

conducted our campaign under the slogan 'United Appeal' and I believe that most of those who are active in the Chest look forward to the day when the Chest becomes a United Appeal in fact as well as in slogan.

I hope it will not be considered disloyal of me to confess that I am not entirely convinced that we should strive for a United Appeal," he warned.

He said one of the reasons the Chest nearly floundered this year, "and would have floundered if it had not been for Justin Harbord's stepping forward when no one else would," was that the Chest was not a truly United Appeal.

EXHAUSTED

"Those in the community prepared to give their time to raising funds had already committed themselves to or exhausted themselves from raising money for the Red Cross or St. Joseph's Hospital or Victoria College or the Salvation Army or the Marching Mothers or some other worthy appeal, Mr. Gregory said.

As long as there are appealing charities outside the Chest, the Chest will have failed in what the minutes indicate as its primary purpose, "that of uniting in one appeal all charities within the community."

In his farewell speech after three years as head of the annual fund drive, Mr. Harbord noted "the results were a 25 per cent increase the first year, followed by a 15 per cent increase and finally a 6 per cent improvement."

NEW DRIVE

He said he hoped new blood in the driver's seat of the cam-

aign would inject a new fund-raising enthusiasm into the 1963 drive.

On the credit side of the ledger, Mr. Harbord named the payroll division as the campaign's "star performer" as it again exceeded its quota and also proved to be the richest canvassing area in the campaign. Two thousand volunteer canvassers under the direction of Mrs. Daryl Elford also helped the residential division meet its quota.

The advance gifts corporate division went over the top despite the $7,500 loss of the B.C. Electric donation.

Elected president of the Dr. Peter J. Banks. Vice-presidents are J. A. Watts and J. A. Baker and honorary treasurer, J. C. McIlvane.

Top Sacred Dies

Former federal candidate Hahn, 51, died Tuesday in Penticton following an appendectomy.

He was president of the British Columbia Social Credit League, elected last year when he failed to win the Vancouver Centre riding against Liberal lawyer Jack Nicholson.

He had been defeated in an Esquimalt-Saanich byelection by George Chatterton the year before.

COMPLICATIONS

Mr. Hahn entered hospital on January 18 and went to the operating room last weekend. Hospital officials said complications set in.

The native of Killaloe, Sask., entered federal politics in 1953 as a member for New Westminster.

He was defeated in the 1958 election.

The son of Austro-German parents, Mr. Hahn was prominent as a merchant and school trustee in the Irvine area near Medicine Hat.

He had been a school teacher 13 years, then was principal of Etzikom and Elmo consolidated schools in south-central Alberta for four years.

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

After the great wind, the still, small voice, and after the exhilarating but not very significant, Gaglardi-Opposition duel on Tuesday, Mrs. Camille Mather to restore the decorum of the House.

This the first NDP member for Delta did with a twitch here and a tweak there... a plea for traffic controls at two "choo" crossings in her riding, a bid for government "medicare" with no profit making insurance companies involved, and a spirited urging of legalized lotteries.

Mrs. Mather also wants more room.

"We lack office space," declared the MLA whose MP husband, Barry Mather, was currently attending the final day of a federal House buffeted by stern storms than our pre-budget teapot tempests.

"Our caucus room is crowded. There is only one room where you can go to dictate or to think out what you want to say. I hope we can prevail upon the minister of public works to give us more adequate accommodation."

Sub Coming?

Medicare is in the air, minority parties curious about the package and government coy. Victoria Socred Donald Smith added his touch of stagy suspense when he suggested that a gift-wrapped Medicare umbrella might just possibly be substituted for the touted $100 home-owner grant.

Here, I won't speculate, beyond pointing out that such action on Mr. Bennett's part would be out of character. Instead, listen a moment to a solid back-bencher from Yale. Sacred I. F. Corbett, as he talks about the Sons of Freedom.

"Their leaders," said Mr. Corbett, "all have jail terms, which is probably why they are leaders. They count it a high honor to go to jail for the Doukhobor cause."

"Ask children 10 years old what they want to do when they grow up, and they answer, 'Go to jail!'"

"That's the type of thinking you have to deal with. Millions of dollars have been spent on these people in the past, and I don't see why this government should spend more money on a bunch who don't know how to come out of the rain."

The Yale member did admit, however, that many Freedomites are "fed up" with the life, and don't wish to fight for their children.

"They want to get out," he said, "if they can."

Full Throttle

And now to the Hon. Phillip Arthur Gaglardi, barrelling through NDP roadblocks, enjoying every minute of an hour-long shouting match.

The highways minister deserved his most spectacular fireworks for a reply to opposition members who baited him on government's expropriation of B.C. Electric Railway.

"You talk about swiveling and kangaroo-jumping from the Liberal rump down on my right," he challenged. "Now what kind of kangaroo-hopping is this?"

The portable rostrum placed on each speech-making member's desk skidded as he leaned on it, scowling across at A. B. Macdonald, Vancouver East, who had risen on a point of privilege to remind Mr. Gaglardi that NDP's had moved to delete from the expropriation bill a section that forbade BCER recourse to the courts.

"I say again," Mr. Gaglardi declared at full volume, "we come to a legislature to voice our opinions, and when everyone on the floor of this House voted for that bill, they gave consent to everything in the bill!"

APRIL 8 ANNOUNCED FOR ELECTION DATE

Parliament Dissolved

By ALEX YOUNG

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA—April 8 was set today as the date of the next federal election.

On that Monday Canadian voters will have a chance to reconsider their collective decision of last June 18 when they elected a "House of minorities" with no one party able to claim definite voting control of the House of Commons.

Tuesday night saw the collapse of the minority Diefenbaker government.

Its ability to survive previous voting crises came to an end as the three opposition parties joined forces to decisively vote non-confidence in the administration.

Today Prime Minister John Diefenbaker recommended and got from Governor-General George Vanier dissolution of Parliament and setting of the April 8 election date.

Mr. Diefenbaker was driven through a snow storm in a Canadian Army limousine from Parliament Hill to Government House to seek dissolution.

He began his meeting with the governor-general at 12:50 p.m. EST and emerged at 1:12 to announce dissolution and the election date.

He also announced a pro forma date for the opening of the next sitting of Parliament—May 16; this is simply a formality required by law, however, and does not necessarily mean Parliament will meet on that date.

The prime minister appeared relaxed after his meeting with the governor-general. He displayed confidence that his party was behind him, despite widely-spreading rumors of a revolt against his leadership from within the cabinet.

Diefenbaker Claims 'Overwhelming Support'

A morning caucus of more than 100 Conservative MPs, he said, should not be described as having given him a vote of confidence. It was rather "the most overwhelming support I have received in all my years in public life."

He told reporters he expected to have no further resignations from the cabinet, but would have to fill perhaps two vacancies.

Those would be the vacancies left by the resignation Sunday of Defence Minister Douglas Harkness, and the vacancy yet to be created by the resignation of Public Works Minister Davie Fulton, who has become B.C. leader of the Conservative party.

Mr. Diefenbaker would not

'We'll Knock Hell Out of the Grits'

He emerged arm-in-arm with the Prime Minister. Both men beamed and Mr. Hees said:

"We are on the road and we are going to knock hell out of the Grits."

State Secretary Rusk has taken personal responsibility for the statement and has maintained that President Kennedy did not see it before it was issued. The White House takes a similar position.

An informant said the final draft was sent to the White House but it apparently ended up on the desk of an official in the office of McGeorge Bundy, Kennedy's national security adviser.

This follows a report by Washington Star columnist Doris Fleeson suggesting that the public criticism, which Prime Minister Diefenbaker described as an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs, was designed to help Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson in his fight against Diefenbaker.

Saying diplomacy requires that the state department take the "rap" for the public criticism, The Post suggests that President Kennedy and his administration were well aware of all the Canada-U.S. nuclear developments.

bitter attack on the Liberals and Mr. Pearson.

Recently the Liberal leader had been speaking "strongly and shrilly," using the same expressions as in the election campaigns of 1957 and 1958.

"The same decaying platitudes" was the way Mr. Diefenbaker described the Liberal leader's recent utterances. Until a few weeks ago Mr. Pearson had been saying Canadian forces should not have nuclear weapons. Now he was advocating them.

Mr. Pearson had "cried out in generalities" against the government's defence policy.

Turning to the general question of the Canadian economy and the effect of a pro-Canadition attitude, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I don't think it is other than pro-Canadian for Canada to point out, when something is wrong, that it's unjust. That we are going to suffer damage to Canada—that argument I don't accept. It's an unworthy one."

Mr. Diefenbaker said there would be no support without co-operation, "but I cannot accept the fears of those who say we must be subservient to a great ally of any country in the world."

Mr. Diefenbaker launched an attack on Liberal party "obstruction" in the Commons, reminiscent of his previous speeches just before a parliamentary dissolution.

'I Ask for a Vote of Confidence'

While the Liberals sought to accuse the government with inaction, the Commons agenda showed a long list of worthy legislation stalled by Liberal party time-wasting.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he referred to the group that had "openly boasted" it would topple the government by stalling on the provision of government funds.

He pointedly emphasized that he was criticizing only the Liberals.

"I ask this House for a vote of confidence—the opportunity to do the things we want to do and have been denied the opportunity of doing," he said.

He gave a clear hint that if the government is continued and allowed to get its program passed by Parliament, he would call an election at the end of the session.

His appeal was quickly rejected by opposition leaders, who accused him of delay and indecision in conducting the nation's affairs for the past five years.

Sacred leader Robert Thompson said: "Too little, too late." He had had his chance, they agreed.

NDP leader T. C. Douglas was the last speaker in the debate and he seemed to express the general opposition opinion in the words:

"The hour of decision has come. Let the people decide."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

NEW YORK—That's all they were talking about around Broadway—the secret reason that Merv Griffin lost his TV show, "It took our hottest new comic, Jackie Mason, to put it in words."

"It's because he got an award for having such a good show," shrugged Jackie, to whom all mysteries are very clear.

"As soon as you get an award, you always lose your show," Jackie said. "Now the trick is not to get an award."

"This trick I have mastered, NBC should hire me. I would guarantee not to get an award and I would deliver. I've been not getting awards in cafes—why shouldn't I not get awards in TV?"

Groucho Marx, Ed Sullivan, Jack Paar, Sammy Davis, Steve Allen and Jan Murray claim that Mason, a 32-year-old bachelor ex-rabbi, is the funniest new funny man.

Thanks to TV spots, Jackie's cache salary has gone to $8,000 a week—though Julie Podell, Copacabana owner, pays him only $5,000.

"Podell says to me, 'I'm losing money on you. I'm losing $40,000 on you. I want you to come back next year, the same price.'

Jackie looked puzzled. "Coud a guy be so desperate to lose $40,000 next year, he's got to have me back? I'm holding out for a raise—so he can lose even more on me!"

People are always asking Jackie, "When did you start in show business?"

"I tell them 'yesterday.' They say, 'yesterday?' For just startin' yesterday, you're great! For a guy in the business six years," he says, "maybe I'm not too fantastic."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL—Fat Jack E. Leonard, the comedian, is very ill in Chicago. In our poll to choose "the man with the most sex appeal," JFK is neck-and-neck with movie stars Cary Grant, Tony Quinn and Rock Hudson. The gals who nominated JFK were Susan Strasberg and Bernice Massi.

NOW comes a suggestion: Track their mysterious migrations from a satellite in space.

The questions have long bothered scientists. Where do these animals migrate and why?

DWIGHT Warner, curator of ornithology at the Minnesota Museum of Natural History, proposes that animals be tagged with small transistor radios weighing $\frac{1}{2}$ to two ounces.

Then, wherever the wandering animal goes, it broadcasts a signal. A satellite, circling the globe, could catch the signal and send it back to scientists who could plot the animal's location. Warner writes in the current issue of the magazine Natural History.

How to Reduce Swollen, Painful Piles

Relieve Itching, Soreness and Pain without ointments, pile pipes or suppositories

Here is a nice, clean, easy way to relieve swollen, painful piles without the use of ointments, pile pipes or suppositories. The secret is in taking just one Hem-Root tablet, with water, two or three times a day. By INTERNAL action, this mild but gently persistent medicine base constricts, helps break up and smoothly removes the internal waste, relieves itching, soreness and pain, helps shrink piles and permits them to heal. Hem-Root is so easy to take, it costs only a few pennies a day if you like it. NO COST otherwise. If it doesn't work, it can be cheerfully refunded if you see one doctor. Ask at any drug store for Hem-Root Internal Pile Treatment.

New U.S. Curb On Cuban Trade

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today barred shipment of U.S. government-financed cargoes on any ship which has been to Cuba since Jan. 1.

The long-expected order is aimed at discouraging western ship owners engaging in trade with Cuba.

The new regulation falls considerably short of more sweeping proposals first planned by the administration last fall.

White House sources said the tougher proposals have not been adopted because of U.S. diplomatic success in getting the maritime countries to cut down on the Cuban trade.

These sources said—too that stiffer regulations may be issued later if needed—and mean while the number of non-Communist bloc ships calling at Cuban ports has dropped to 14 in January from 92 last July.
